Dr. Hong Peng , has over ten years of experience in licensing and intellectual property management and valuation. She is currently an Associate Director of the technology licensing group at Yale University. Dr. Peng as done many licensing, technology transfer deals with biotech and pharmaceutical companies. Prior to her current position, Dr. Peng was Director of Patents and Licensing at the New York Blood Center and earlier a Licensing Associate at the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center. Dr. Peng grew up in China and is the author of a report entitled "Licensing Strategies & Opportunities in the China Pharma/Biotech Industry," published by Kline & Company. Dr. Peng holds her PhD in Molecular Biology from Cornell University, an MBA from Columbia University and a BS in Biology from Peking University.