

Trust is central to the functioning of all spheres of life. Good leaders strive to be trustworthy and to create institutional cultures and structures that foster trust among their stakeholders. This interdisciplinary conference will draw on a wide variety of fields, including theology, philosophy, business, politics, medicine, and media.

The keynote speakers are Baroness Onora O'Neill, Principal of Newnham College of the University of Cambridge and author of A Question of Trust; Jürgen Moltmann, Emeritus Professor of Systematic Theology on the Protestant Faculty of the University of Tübingen; and Ambassador Philip Lader, Chairman WPP Group plc and Senior Advisor, Morgan Stanley.

The mission of the Yale Center for Faith & Culture is to promote the practice of faith in all spheres of life through theological research and leadership development.

The goal of the Sarah Smith Memorial Conferences is to foster moral leadership in all spheres of life.
