Notes:

1. From 2002 and onward, the Office of Cooperative Research was able to further breakdown the number of patent applications and the number of patents issued to include a category of international. The breakdown now distinguishes between applications for patents made in the United States and applications for patents made in foreign countries.
2. New licenses are those agreements that qualify as one of the following:
 - a. Patentable invention license agreements (with money)
 - b. Research reagent agreements (with money)
 - c. Animal model agreements (with money)
 - d. Outgoing material transfer agreements (with money only)
